The head of the spring may be, generally is, somewhat remote from the spot where its sweet waters emerge upon the surface. It would be impossible to discover among the northern hills the tiny lake which is the very head water of yonder broad Connecticut. These analogies hold as to educational movements and institutions. We may trace back the history of the world's oldest and greatest centers of learning until our quest is lost in the dimness of tradition; but even then perhaps we shall not reach their real origin. National enthusiasms, religions, even wars, patriotic inspirations, social movements, the benevolence of individuals and communities, - all have played their effective parts, under varying conditions and circumstances, in enlarging the boundaries of educational influence and power. And so it happens that in the last analysis it may be impossible for me to state exactly what particular influence most effectively contributed to the establishment of the institution which forty years ago to-day threw open its doors to the aspiring young men who constituted its first entering class. No man can tell just where lay the one efficient, creative cause of our college life, nor exactly who proposed the seed thought out of which has grown modern agricultural education and the Massachusetts Agricultural College, whose fortieth festival day we are here to celebrate. I say all this, not forgetting the great Morrill act of 1862, upon which the superstructure of our college life is laid. It would...
